

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5      An optical semiconductor device comprises: an optical semiconductor element; and a circuit. The circuit is connected to the optical semiconductor element and has a series rectifying circuit including a plurality of zener diodes connected in series. The circuit further has a rectifying element whose anode is connected to an anode of the series rectifying circuit.